The first clear image of the human spirit was photographed accidentally, after the death of the author's mother. This is the story of the taking and the subsequent authenticating and evaluating of the photograph by leading world experts. Gary E. Schwartz (Professor of Psychology, Medicine, Neurology, Psychiatry, and Surgery, and Director of the Laboratory for Post-Materialist Science and Spirituality, at the University of Arizona; author of The Afterlife Experiments, The G.O.D. Experiment, The Energy Healing Experiments, and The Sacred Promise) writes in the Foreword: "You are about to read a one-of-a-kind and likely history-making book. I only have one concern about this book. The book is so interesting, Williams' life is so extraordinary (and eccentric), the author is so colorful and such a superb storyteller, that the scientific and spiritual significance of his apparent afterlife communication account may become overshadowed by his life. "Of course, this makes for fun reading, and I personally enjoyed the book immensely. However, the primary reason I decided to write this Foreword was to make sure that you, the reader, recognize the potential profundity of what Williams has discovered, and what it might mean for science as well as our personal lives."
